

Farming Smarter: Crop rotation to mitigate crop disease

Crop rotation can reduce disease and pests by limiting the time host plants grow in a given field. Randy Kutcher of University of Saskatchewan came to WheatStalk 2018 to talk about different crops that can go into rotation to avoid fusarium head blight.

<https://youtu.be/vJ6qjy6AxB8>